Williams, Osman Speak at Exercises

A brilliant young Presbyterian minister and a vice-president of the Ford Foundation will deliver the principal addresses of Presbyterian College's 76th commencement exercises on June 2-3.

President Marshall W. Brown has announced that the Rev. Allison Williams, pastor of Atlanta's Trinity Presbyterian Church, will preach the baccalaureate sermon; and John Osman, a Presbyterian College alumnus who serves as vice-president of the Ford Foundation Fund for Adult Education, will give the commencement address.

Williams also will be on the PC campus to receive an honorary doctor of divinity degree at the graduation exercises.

The baccalaureate speaker has served as pastor of the Trinity Presbyterian Church since its organization in 1949. During this time, his energetic leadership has been considered mainly responsible for its growth from 50 members to the present 1,400. Before going to Trinity, he spent two years as school pastor and a faculty member at the School of the Ozarks in Point Lookout, Mo.

A native of Atlanta, Williams received his BA degree from Emory University, (1944), his bachelor of divinity from Princeton Theological Seminary and his master of theology from Union Seminary in Richmond. He is a trustee of Westminster Schools of Atlanta, is married to the former Alpha Josephine Culp of Fort Mill, S. C., and they have two young sons.

Osman, a Presbyterian College graduate in the class of 1933, recently assumed the position of vice-president of the Ford Foundation Fund for Adult Education. He had served as Eastern representative of the Fund for five years prior to that.

The commencement speaker joined the Ford Foundation after being associated with Southwestern University at Memphis as a professor of philosophy for seven years. Osman holds a bachelor of divinity and a master of theology both from Union Theological Seminary in Richmond. He has a master of arts from the University of Richmond, has done additional graduate work at the University of Chicago, and holds an honorary doctorate from Southwestern. His wife is the former Mary Chase Williams of Charleston, S. C.

Summer Session at PC

Summer school at Presbyterian College will open on June 11 this year, Academic Dean George C. Bellingrath has announced.

The eight-week session will extend through August 10.

Scholarship Finalists Visit Campus

Twenty-two high school seniors from five states have reached the finals of the Founder's Scholarship awards at Presbyterian College.

Student Dean A. J. Thackston, in making the announcement, said these students will be entertained on the PC campus and will receive additional tests and interviews in the competition for eight grants ranging up to $1,500 each.

The select group, composed of 12 South Carolinians, seven from Georgia and one each from Florida, Virginia and Arkansas, include:

South Carolina—Miss Mary Keith Adair of Clinton; William P. Betchman of Summerton; Charles L. Garrett of Simpsonville; Steven D. Gore of Loris; William E. Grishaw of Pendleton; Robert N. Jeanes of Easley; Wayne D. Kay of Anderson; Andrew B. McGarity of Summerville; Miss Brenda G. Maddox of Spartanburg; James G. Monroe, Jr., of Latta; Jerry R. Owings of Gray Court; and Conrad W. Sanders of Orangeburg.

Georgia—Paul V. Ard and James B. Chivers, both of Atlanta; John N. Burnett of Decatur; Robert Carpenter of Tunnel Hill; Roy E. Grant of Rossville; Herbert Hammett, Jr., of Hogansville; and Britt Spann of McRae.

Florida—Miss Annette Gatlin of Jacksonville; Virginia—John Timothy McCorkle of Bristol; Arkansas—Bobby Horseman of Brinkley.

The scholarship candidates will be honored guests at the annual Dean's List banquet for top-ranking PC students in the near future. They were selected to visit the campus on the basis of competitive preliminary tests given to a large group of applicants. Final awards will be made on the basis of intellect, leadership and character.

S. C. Synodical School—June 17-22

The tenth annual Synodical Training School of the Presbyterian women of South Carolina will be held on the Presbyterian College campus on June 17-22.

Mrs. R. Grier Robinson of Charleston, state president of the Women-of-the-Church and dean of the training school, has announced that she expects the largest session to date to take advantage of the teachings of an outstanding faculty. This faculty will include:

Dr. Bernard Boyd, head of the University of North Carolina department of religion; Mrs. C. Darby Fulton, former synodical president and wife of the executive secretary of the Board of World Missions; the Rev. J. W. McQueen, pastor of the Albany (Ga.) First Church, and Mrs. McQueen; Dr. Claude H. Pritchard, secretary of the division of home missions; and Mrs. E. L. Secrest, former president of the Georgia Synodical.

Applicants For PC Show Steady Increase

Applications for the 1957-58 session at Presbyterian College are running 50 percent higher than last year's record total.

Presbyterian young people who plan to enroll at PC next September, thus, are urged to send in their applications as soon as possible to be assured dormitory accommodations.

Additional dormitory space during the past two years has enabled PC to increase its capacity, with the result that an all-time high of 541 students were permitted to register for the current session last fall.

The increased enrollment has been accompanied by a steady tightening of academic requirements for entrance.

Alumni Support Development Program

Presbyterian College alumni have thrown strong support behind the Diamond Jubilee Development program of the past 18 months, the latest issue of The Presbyterian College Magazine reports.

More than $127,500 has been subscribed to date by PC men and women, for an average gift of $193.30 per donor.

These contributions have been concentrated mostly upon the proposed Memorial Student Center, a longtime alumni dream to erect a memorial to the 65 PC men killed in World War II and the five killed in the Korean War. Construction is scheduled to begin shortly after the architects complete detailed plans necessary for contract bidding.

This support from among PC's 3,200 active alumni has come as part of the broad capital gifts campaign which thus far has produced more than $940,000.

Young Scholarship Endowed at College

A scholarship in memory of the late Dr. and Mrs. Jack H. Young of Clinton, S. C., has been established at Presbyterian College by their daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Young Dick and her husband, the Rev. James McDowell Dick, of Raleigh, N. C.

President Marshall W. Brown, in announcing the gift, said the scholarship will be named "Jack Holland and Lana Copeland Young Scholarship Fund."

Meet the Faculty

Taylor Martin, Professor of Mathematics

Stephen Taylor Martin, associate professor of mathematics at Presbyterian College, continues an outstanding family tradition in this department.

His father, the late Abram Venable Martin, directed PC mathematics for more than 30 years, until his retirement in 1934. And Taylor Martin, since joining the Presbyterian faculty in 1953, has maintained the same combination of academic excellence and awareness of student problems for which his father was noted. He serves as a deacon in the Clinton First Presbyterian Church.

Martin came to PC after eight years as a mathematics professor at Newberry College. His background also includes two earlier summer sessions teaching at PC and several years spent as teacher and coach in the high schools of Farmville, Va., Clinton, S. C., and Laurens, S. C. Besides these activities, he has done considerable work as a licensed surveyor.

A native of Clinton, Taylor Martin holds a BA degree from Hampden-Sydney College and his master's from the University of South Carolina. He is married to the former Melanie Thornley of Clinton, and they have one daughter.
